Here's what we've got for you this week:

- What's New: Return Is Now Free for Everyone
- Argo Live: Live with Captain Boomies
- Quick Tip: Make Your Depth Numbers Easier to Read
- On the Blog: More Dangerous Than Bananas on a Boat
- Boat Show: The Powerboat Show Starts Thursday
- Community Spotlight: Highlights from Argo Live

What's New this Week

Return Is Now Free for Everyone

You found a great spot. Now you need to get back, and the fog is rolling in. Or the sun's going down, and every marker starts to look the same.

Save your track or trip, open My Trips, and tap Return. Argo turns the path you just ran into a route you can follow home. It's the same way you came in, so there's no guessing.

Return used to be Premium only. Now it's free for everyone. Premium members have one more option: tap On Map to copy the track onto your map and use it to head home.

Next time you go out, record your trip so the way back is ready when you need it.

Next Argo Live

Live with Captain Boomies

Can't make it to Annapolis? We'll bring the show to you.

Join us Thursday, October 8 at 6 PM ET, live from the Powerboat Show with Jeff Foulk, Nick Gaffney, Dave Rowe, and special guest Captain Boomies.

Quick Tip

Make Your Depth Numbers Easier to Read

Squinting at the chart to read a depth number while you're underway isn't ideal. In bright sun, or on a busy chart, the numbers can blend right in.

From the main Map Options screen, choose Depth Number Format. Move the slider to change the size, then tap the color palette to pick a color that stands out.

On the Blog

More Dangerous Than Bananas on a Boat

Boaters love their superstitions. But according to Dave Rowe, one of the real hazards on a boat is a lot less obvious: the technician you hire.

When Dave bought his 1982 DeFever 44, he found an electrical fault two "qualified" marine techs had created, then covered up. He walks through what went wrong, why ABYC standards matter, and how to make sure the person working on your boat is actually qualified for the job.

Boat Show

See You in Annapolis This Week!

The Annapolis Powerboat Show starts Thursday, October 8, and we'll be there all four days.

Powerboat Show: October 8-11

Sailboat Show: October 15-18

Find us in Tent C, spot 112, at both shows.

Stop by, say hello, meet the Argo team, and see what's new in the app.
